the focus of this book is on holiday planning and decision making which is the cornerstone of tourist behaviour and tourism marketing the first three chapters deal with the basics including an overview of decision making paradigms and variables chapter 1 a critical review of existing tourist behaviour models chapter 2 and a description of the methods that may be used for studying holiday decision making chapter 3 the chapters that follow relate the findings of an in depth qualitative and interpretative study that followed the decision making process of 25 belgian households during a whole year chapter 4 discusses the context in which holiday decisions are made in the next two chapters the focus is on the decision making process in itself both at the generic and holiday levels chapter 5 and at the destination level chapter 6 post experience processes are investigated in chapter 7 whereas group processes are the particular focus of chapter 8 chapter 9 presents the integrative and conclusive part of the book where a new typology of holidaymakers is proposed the book has a subject index we all make decisions every day but are you aware of the process you use to make a decision this essential practical guide for education and associated professionals using education focused case studies throughout to illustrate key points explains the mechanics of decision making introducing the associated language and concepts it presents both a practical decision making framework based in the mental capacity act decision making process and a decision making syllabus from which education professionals can create their own curriculum being able to make decisions is an important life skill which can have a positive impact on well being however many children and young people with sen will need direct teaching and guidance to develop this ability from the earliest age the book explores the types of important decisions children and young people may need to make in relation to their education with particular focus on choosing a new educational placement providing practical guidance about how education professionals can support young people to make this decision there is reference throughout the book as to the ways in which practitioners can work in partnership with parents to support and develop children and young people s decision making ability appendices provide completed decision making frameworks and associated guidance motivational models are critical to understanding crisis decision making because leaders and their advisors are emotionally involved intent on reducing stress and motivated to find ways of advancing their interests while minimizing the risk of war the principal theoretical work on the subject is irving janis and leon mann s classic study of decision making published in 1977 while useful the book has a significant flaw janis and mann theorize that policy maker stress during crisis is derived from decision deliberation leading to a circular approach this book solves the identified problem by addressing circularity between the rise of psychological stress decision deliberation and dysfunctional behavior with an independent measure of decision conditions using cognitive complexity with an effective independent measure of stress the key contribution of this volume is a reformulation of janis and mann s model to render the construct more rigorous and empirically useful to the present day study of crisis decision making the united states has long recognized and honored the service and sacrifices of its military and veterans veterans who have been injured by their service whether their injury appears during service or afterwards are owed appropriate health care and disability compensation for some medical conditions that develop after military service the scientific information needed to connect the health conditions to the circumstances of service may be incomplete when information is incomplete congress or the department of veterans affairs va may need to make a presumption of service connection so that a group of veterans can be appropriately compensated the missing information may be about the specific exposures of the veterans or there may be incomplete scientific evidence as to whether an exposure during service causes the health condition of concern for example when the exposures of military personnel in vietnam to agent orange could not be clearly documented a presumption was established that all those who set foot on vietnam soil were exposed to agent orange the institute of medicine iom committee was charged with reviewing and describing how presumptions have been made in the past and if needed to make recommendations for an improved scientific framework that could be used in the future for determining if a presumption should be made the committee was asked to consider and describe the processes of all participants in the current presumptive disability decision making process for veterans the committee was not asked to offer an opinion about past presumptive decisions or to suggest specific future presumptions the committee heard from a range of groups that figure into this decision making process including past and present staffers from congress the va the iom veterans service organizations and individual veterans the department of defense dod briefed the committee about its current activities and plans to better track the exposures and health conditions of military personnel the committee further documented the current process by developing case studies around exposures and health conditions for which presumptions had been made improving the presumptive disability decision making process for veterans explains recommendations made by the committee general methods by which scientists as well as government and other organizations evaluate scientific evidence in order to determine if a specific exposure causes a health condition master s thesis from the year 2017 in the subject didactics for the subject english pedagogy literature studies language english abstract this research attempts to make its contribution to the growing sociolinguistic literature on classroom foreign second language learning and teaching it reports a comparative ethnographic inquiry into the similarities and differences of decision making and decision making process employed by two categories of teachers when approaching planning and instruction in the language classrooms in chinese efl teaching context and the thought provoking reasons for these similarities and differences have also been explored through the analysis of a range of broad research questions i e first how do two sets of teachers approach instructional decisions in the similar settings second can we have access to the similarities and differences between their instructional decisions third what factors might affect their pedagogical decisions and fourth are their instructional decisions consistent with their theoretical ideas two categories of teachers consist of five chinese tel and five western teachers respectively who work in two similar teaching institutions in china the selected basic data gathered through a sequence of survey observations and particular information elicitation techniques consist of the running accounts of observation lesson plans and over fifty hours of audio recording of class sessions and interviews through analysis of selected lesson excerpts and teachers comments on these data we identify similarities and differences in the classroom interpretation of the tasks and participation structures that these teachers adopted in their instruction and the underlying reasons behind them with reference to beliefs context prior experiences and culture the most general conclusion is that whether they emphasize accuracy or fluency and whether they prefer student centered instruction or teacher centered they tend to capitalize on these theories eclectically though they do differ in the extent to which they stress one focus or another therefore much of a teacher s decision on planning and instruction resides in the way he she interprets the teaching setting and acts on the information from the ongoing classroom interactions in the last two chapters of this book the subject of teacher s decision making is explored from the perspective of soft power and critical discourse analysis so that teachers decision making research can be considered more deeply in the aspect of cognitive discourse and linguistic philosophy in many developing countries agricultural extension services are generally biased towards men with information targeted mainly to male members of a farming household and in formats that are rarely tailored to female members nevertheless female farmers may also benefit from such services as this may affect their ability to make informed decisions resulting in increased farm productivity household income and welfare we conduct a gendered field experiment among maize farming households in eastern uganda to test whether video enabled extension messaging affects outcomes related to maize cultivation in this experiment men women and couples are shown randomly assigned videos about improved maize management practices in which male female or both male and female actors are featured we first vary exposure to the videos by gender to test the effects of changes in intra household information asymmetries investigating whether involving women as recipients of information increases their ability to participate in household decision making and thus their involvement in household production choices we then vary exposure to the gender of the actors in the videos to test for role model effects exploring whether involving women as information messengers challenges the idea that decision making is a predominantly male domain in turn affecting women s outcomes results show that targeting women with information increases their knowledge about improved maize management practices their role in agricultural decision making the adoption of recommended practices and inputs production related outcomes and the quantity of maize women sell to the market results for the role model effects are mixed and are evident more in joint household outcomes than individual women s outcomes overall our findings suggest that in the context of our study extension efforts aimed at directly addressing intra household information asymmetries may be a first best means of empowering women in agriculture other more subtle means that seek to influence perceptions and norms about gendered roles in the household may not generate expected effects or work via expected impact pathways though they remain worth further exploration
